

Lagan Chronicles

A Minecraft Chronicles rebrand.

By

Logan Latham and James Clark

Battle For The Nether

I just spawn into Minecraft ready for anything but then... a pig spawn right in front of me. "Oink," the pig said "hello" I said "oink" the pig repeated. Afterward, I walked over to a forest and started punching trees to get wood. Later that day I had over 2 stacks of wood logs then I crafted them into 256 planks and saved 64 logs. Once it started getting dark I ran into a field and started building a house. It's now night and I have an ok shelter for the first night. The house was a 5 by 5 block house made out of wood planks. Once the sun rose I broke my small house and got back my blocks. I jumped around looking for a mountain, once I found a mountain I made a crafting table, a stone pickaxe, and a stone sword. I dug into it and started to carve out my house. Once I carved out my house I replaced all the stone with planks. I ran back to the field and started to find sheep. After 4 minutes passed I had 5 wool. I ran back to my house and crafted a bed, and 3 pieces of carpet. I placed down my carpet around my bed. It became night and I went to bed till morning.

In the morning I expanded my house till I had used all my wood. During the expansion I found a cave to explore. I entered the cave and right away I found... coal just plain old coal then I saw a shine of... Iron. Once I mined it all I had 29 iron. Then I heard a zombie groan. I jumped back, grabbed my sword, and sliced right through the zombie's head and poof the zombie was gone. I went back into my house and crafted a furnace then smelted my iron with the coal I found. After the iron and stone were done smelting I grabbed it and the furnace then made a blast furnace and a smoker. I placed down my new blast furnace and smoker then crafted an iron sword. I also cooked the 6 raw meat from the sheep I killed earlier. Once my food was done I ate it because I had 1 hunger bar left. Once I ate the mutton to fill my hunger bar I had 3 left. I heard a skeleton, a few zombies, and 2 spiders coming closer than they jumped into my house from the mine. I got my iron sword and sliced through the zombies. Then the spiders, the skeleton shot me Directly in the head and killed me. I respawned right on my bed, dodged an arrow, jumped then sliced right through the skeleton.

After I killed the skeleton a message I never saw before appeared on the screen: Bodie joined the game. After he joined we went back to the mine and explored more of it.

"Finally someone else to hang out with". I thought we said hi and then went to explore more of the mines. We found so much stuff including diamonds!

We didn't find any obsidian to make a portal so we found a new mine and we found 17 obsidian. Now I built the portal frame and lit it with my flint and steel. Boom I got launched back and saw the purple portal.

Once I woke up from being unconscious I looked around the nether It didn't look how I remembered. it had these tree-like plants and I didn't see any zombie pigmen. I saw these weird pig-like creatures running at me. I grabbed my sword and sliced it into the creature's chest. It made a noise like a pig dying once I hit it. I also saw these tall figures with dangly ears. They were fighting that creature I saw a second ago. Me and Bodie decided to stay away from the weird-looking creatures and we started looking for a nether fortress. We walked for about 100 blocks until we found a weird black structure that looked all beaten up. We decided to get a closer look but that's when we fell into lava. I decided to dream it and place a boat to save us. We kept placing boats like that until we got to land. Bodie was impressed that I could do a dream move. On our way to land, we saw these weird lava walkers. They were all hairy but had a bald head. We looked them up in the Minecraft Wikipedia and found out that they were called striders and were added in 1.16 which was the version that we were playing. While reading the wiki we found out that striders are rideable if you put a saddle on them so we did and now we can practically walk on lava. We entered the black building earlier and it had many of those mobs that were called "piglins" when we were on the wiki. We later learned that penguins replaced zombie pigmen so we were sad about that. Inside the tall black building lay some chests, lava, many variations of blocks, pigmen, and pigmen brutes as we later learned that that is what they are called. We looted the chests and barely got out alive. So here's what happened while we were looting one of the chests we were attacked by a piglin brute and more followed right behind. We had to use our diamond swords. We kept slaying them but then more came to replace their spots. We realized we just needed to run so we did. We were attacked on the way out and barely managed to survive.

With all that loot we gathered we were able to make nethorite gear and tools for both of us. We didn't know what we should do since there was no natural boss in the nether. We just continued to explore until we came upon a giant structure made of obsidian. We were not sure if the structure was natural or a glitch or what so we opened up the wiki. We couldn't find anything about these structures so we decided to explore them. Inside the structure was a throne made of bedrock and we saw a Steve-like figure with glowy white eyes. We knew who this was because we are OG Minecraft players and know the tale of Herobrine. We wanted to fight him so we did we were going to save the nether from this evil boss that was trapped down here by Notch.

Herobrine was a very strong creature and we were very experienced. We were ready to take him on. We wielded our swords made out of nethorite and prepared to attack. We were going to save the nether I thought as I launched towards the beast. My first attack didn't even touch him, he just leaped back to his feet after I knocked him down and he launched lightning towards us hitting bodie straight in the chest, almost killing him. Bodie had half a heart and could barely stand straight. I fed him one of the golden apples hoping he wouldn't die. After bodie felt better we both leaped towards herobrine and sliced one of his arms off. well, that made him mad because he zapped us back with lightning and almost killed us both. We thought we were doomed when he came right above us and was about to deliver the final blow when we saw Elias come right up behind herobrine and cut off his head. We were saviors and we had saved the nether.

We all went back to the overworld and started to build a city because we wanted to make this server public for our friends to join.

Fight for the end

Ever since we opened the server to the public we have had a lot more people join. The city was finished before too many people joined so lucky everyone had a home. I decided that I wanted the city to be ruled by someone they voted for so I started an election. Me and this one guy named DarkSoul59 decided to run for president. DarkSoul was a nice guy and he was always helpful. The city we lived in was huge with a giant wall around it and guards everywhere. Our city was the only one on the server.

When it was time for me to read my speech I got on the podium and started right away. "Hello everyone my name is Logan and I'm running for president today so we can have a safe city. I want to keep this server protected and fun for everyone." I got a lot of claps even though it was a very short speech. Next, it was DarkSoul's turn. The candidates weren't allowed to hear each other's speeches so I have no idea what he said. When we were both done with our speeches everyone went into a room and pressed one of the two buttons one of them said "vote for Logan" and the other said "vote for DarkSoul". Neither of us knew who voted what but I'm pretty sure Bodie and Elias voted for me. After everyone voted the scores came up on the board. And I won! I was the president of the city.

Once I returned to the council room with Bodie and Elias we received a note from someone named Endie. We read the note and it said. That we may have defeated herobrine but now their king will rise and take over the world! The end is where the ender dragon lives and I'm pretty sure Endie is an enderman. So we went looking for ender pearls so we could save the end.

We started our journey looking for ender pearls by sleeping. After our nap, we set off and immediately found an enderman who almost died fighting that beast. Luckily we didn't and got 1 pearl from it. We choose to look in our cave. We entered the cave and couldn't find any right off the bat. After about 20 minutes we found about 5 enderman we killed them all and got 5 ender pearls and now we have a total of 6 ender pearls. We went back up to the surface and walked to the nearest forest and found a few more enderman and only 3 pearls. By then it was night but we kept looking and we went back to the cave and found 3 more pearls! We got them all! We headed back to the base and went to bed.

It was time we headed for The End dimension to defeat the dragon. We looked for a strong hold so we could find the portal to the strange world. We went east as that is where the eye of ender told us to go. We traveled east for a while then we had to go northeast as the eye said. We finally arrived at the fortress at around dawn. We dug down and entered the first room, the library. We went through the tunnels and passed many chambers until we reached the portal room. None of the eyes were in so we were Luckily we made 12. We placed our eyes and waited for the void to return so we could jump in. when it appeared an enderman pulled us through the portal and the next thing you know it. We were trapped in a bedrock room. We did our best to get out. We tried using leftover ender pearls to teleport out and believe it or not it worked. When we got out of the prison we saw that there was no dragon. We couldn't believe it, where did the dragon go!? A flash of light appeared above the exit portal and a giant enderman-like creature appeared and started charging straight for us. We grabbed our swords and sliced the creature as well as knocked it back. We grabbed our shields and blocked its other attack. We decided to knock it back and build a wall of obsidian to protect us. We got our swords and bows ready, jumped over the wall and shot the creature, and knocked it into one of the obsidian pillars. It floated into the air and zoomed toward us and killed Bodie. I knew I didn't have time to watch my friend's items fade away so I grabbed his arrows and shot the beast into the bedrock exit. I hit the creature with so much power it broke the bedrock when it made contact. The beast roared as it came charging straight for me. I ducked and hoped it would miss me. And it did it went right over my head and zoomed into the void killing itself. I knew I could do it. I felt so happy but I reacted too soon because a giant mutated enderman came from one of the pillars and charged straight for my wall. It broke instantly. I had to run and try not to die. When suddenly Bodie came straight from the prison jumped on an obsidian block and came dashing down and hit the beast. He killed that monster and free'd the end! We jumped through the portal and ended the game.

The Next Dimension

After returning from our previous battle against the ender king we were congratulated by Elias and the council for saving our city once again. While we were gone we let Elias run the city since we trusted him the most. We hadn't told everyone about the fight yet so we decided to let them know that we saved the city once again. After the announcement and the cheering, I took my place on my throne so I can get some rest after the intense battle. I was just talking with bodie and Elias about the next event we should plan at the newly opened spleef arena when james our minecraft command and Redstone engineer entered the room. He wanted to talk to me in private so I think he made a huge discovery. "I have discovered a way for us to go to alternate dimensions rather than just the end and nether." he said sounding excited "All you have to do is flick a switch next to my newest invention the dimension-portal," he said while walking me, bodie and Elias over to the obsidian portal. "To work it," he said "just light it with a flint-&-steel and flick the switch." he said as he lit the portal "the portal should change to another color and take you to another world upon walking through," he said as he hit the lever. "And to stop the portal just through a bottle of water at it," he said as he demonstrated how to stop the portal. We were amazed at how he figured this out but we knew that we couldn't let this fall into the wrong hands or else they would be able to break into the castle through the portal. "Can we customize the alternate dimensions?" I asked "Sure. Just alter the code in the command block and it will build a world similar to your customizations." he said while writing some code into the command block. "For example, I can make a world that is a prison and we could lock all the prisoners inside of the world." "That's awesome!" I said while thinking of all the things we could make. "Can you move structures from here to its own world?" I asked curiously "Yes. You just have to use what's called a structure block." "Can you move the spleef arena to an empty world dimension for me?" "I'm on it" James replied as he exited the castle and put down a structure block and copied the building. Then he placed a de-structure block which broke the whole building and replaced it with a cyan portal with text above it that said "Spleef Arena". That's when it started getting dark out so I went into my giant bedroom and went to sleep on my bed.

Today was the day of the spleef tournament. It started with Bodie and Elias on their team (The Flaming Wolves) against darksoul and captain cheese (Dark Cheese). To make a long story short the flaming wolves won. The next round was two other teams against each other but I'm going to just focus on my friend's team. In the end, it was The Flaming Wolves against The Light Demons. Bodie grabbed his shovel and jumped towards EPG (on the Light Demons team) and tried but failed to break the block under EPG because he dodged just in time. Elias ran and jumped and hit EPG into the water below. It was right about then when I saw the entrance portal change to a black color instead of cyan. And these black soldiers started pouring out. I'm pretty sure they were from one of the alternate dimensions so I asked James. James said that they were from another dimension and they had hacked our portal and we needed to get to the command block to stop them quickly. So we both ran to the portal hit the lever and set it back to the city's portal. I ran through and saw that everything was ok back in the city. Now that I knew everything was safe I returned to the arena and told James he needs to make something to secure the portals so they can't be hacked into, especially the jail. He said that he could make something it just would be a little while. I told him he needed to get to it and have it done as soon as possible.

I gathered my army ready to search the dimension. I chose ten of my best soldiers to search the location as well as me who would also search with Bodie and Elias. James would stay back to run the city while we investigated the new world. We entered the portal and began our hunt for their leader. When we arrived we saw the dimension was mostly made of basalt which was recently added in 1.16 AKA the nether update. We searched around the strange dimension looking for some sort of castle or house or something. Yet we found nothing. We were looking for hours and we had no luck. Maybe James put us through the wrong portal. That's when I realized it was a trap! They probably didn't come directly from their home dimension and they were probably going to our castle to raid it. We ran back to where we remembered the portal. But we couldn't find it! We thought that they must have broken our portal but then we saw it in the distance. We ran through the portal and returned home.

When we returned home we saw that there were indeed people in black suits fighting our army. We went directly into the city castle to ask James what happened. "I was tinkering with one of the portals when I accidentally turned off the security and they started pouring through." he said, "I locked the portal but some of them still got out so I called the army to protect the city." "Ok. We should invade their base since it looks like all their men are there to attack." "Alright then it's settled, James watches the castle while we flood their base." "James? Do you know which portal we need to go through?" I said "yes I do!" he tinkered with the command block until the portal turned to a red-like color. "There it is!" he said as he presented the portal. We grabbed some better gear and weapons and we jumped through the portal not knowing what to expect.

Once we arrived in the dimension we started looking around. There were mostly grass hills and lakes. The world looked like the overworld. We headed north because that is where our compass told us to go. We walked for about an hour before we stumbled upon a giant mansion. At first, we thought it was natural but then we noticed that it was not a woodland mansion which is what we thought it was. It looked like a giant structure made of quartz. We entered the structure and found that there was no one there. We entered this room made of obsidian that looked like the headquarters of the villains. Since it was made of obsidian we couldn't blow it up which was what we were going to do. So we just explored the building hoping to find some sort of life. We stumbled across a room... we heard a noise. We grabbed our swords and prepared to fight whatever lay in front of us. We opened the door and... there was a guy in a red robe with a golden crown sleeping in a bed. We ran and hid right as we saw him get up from his bed. We drew weapons, drank our potions suited up in our armor, and prepared for a fight. He walked out of his room... and he looked directly at us in shock! "WHAT ARE YOU DOING IN MY CASTLE!!!” he screamed “umm... we were sent to guard you against intruders??” I spoke before he attacked us “oh ok...” he said. “You must be galagon, the leader and you must be ninja-cat the engineer and you must be inferno the master guard.” “yep that's my name don't wear it out” I said while slapping my friend's mouths closed so they wouldn't say anything that could get us killed. I put my sword in my hand and stood around the king protecting him while grabbing the master key from his pocket. I told him that we were going to search the castle to see if any intruders got in. He let us go so we did. We instantly went into the council room and flooded it then we went to security and flooded it so the cameras would stop working. Then we flooded the main room, the jail, the court, and every other room besides the king's room. We returned to the king's room where we found him lying in his bed. We poured water everywhere waking him up then we attacked we grabbed our swords and bows and shot and sliced at him. He grabbed a weird blue shiny sword and hit me in the chest as I shot him with an arrow. He cut Bodie on the neck and poof Bodie was gone he hit Elias too and he disappeared. He came closer to me and I backed away until I was cornered. I had nothing left to do but die. He jumped up and was about to strike me when Elias placed a block above me and the king hit that and Bodie jumped up and sliced the king through the chest killing him. We grabbed some sponges and covered the base in them then we set off a giant bomb of TNT and blew up the whole place. We returned home to see everyone was still fighting...

The Rise Of The New King

We returned to the kingdom and the war that was going on. We grabbed our swords and started to fight off the enemy team. They were in leather armor so we could cut through it pretty fast. Eventually, they retreated from us because we were too good. We had James repair the security and repair the portal back to how it was. We talked for a while about what we should do about the king in the other dimension. We decided that since we killed him he probably wouldn't mess with us. That's when I remembered it was spleef day. That meant the game would go on in the spleef world again. I hit the intercom button so I could get Elias and Bodie to come with me to the first game of the season. They came and we went through the spleef portal.

We arrived at the stadium and immediately went to our seats. I had a special seat because I was the leader and I made special seats for my friends too including darksoul (who I learned's name is David) who ran against me I have now befriended. Dark-soul was a great player and was best with command blocks just like James. There were 6 teams this time since the season just started. The 6 teams were: 1. Flaming Chickens 2. 39 Dimensions 3. Flying Chickens 4. Evil Commands 5. Team Epic 6. The Rise Of Darksoul. Team Epic was led by a girl named Kat who was one of my friends. Team

Epic was my favorite team. It started with Evil Commands against Flying Chickens. Since like last time we did a match I stuck to only my friend's teams I'm just going to do that again. The first time Team Epic got to play was when they went against The Rise Of Dark Soul who was led by you guessed it dark-soul. Olivia charged at Dark-soul with her shovel and knocked him back and he fell into the water below. Jack who was on the Epic Team ran up to Bruh-Moment --who was darksoul's teammate-- and he hit him into the wall and Olivia hit him into the water. They high-fived and went back to the entrance where they entered the arena. When it was Epic Team's next time to play a bunch of guys with red leather armor charged onto the arena and started attacking them. I told James to lock the portal and open the military portal and have them get here ASAP. The guys in red armor killed most of the spleef players who appeared in the city in their homes. The army arrived and ambushed the red-armored players. I helped get rid of those pests as well after having my armor brought to me by one of the guards. We killed them off and returned to the city.

The city was ruined. The whole place was all blown up and nothing was left. And worst of all they hacked into the server panel and installed a mod that keeps us from disabling hardcore. Hardcore Mode Enabled. This means if we die we can't respawn. I saw this guy way up at the top of an obsidian tower. He wore a red robe and a crown. It was the king we killed. He came back to get us. He jumped off the podium and charged straight at me. I grabbed my sword and attacked. I sliced his chest and he hit me with his glowy blue sword again I got hit with lightning and knocked backward. I had James hand me the prototype Super-Sword he was making for me. I grasped the handle and jumped at him and cut his neck then got blasted back and died... I was gone forever. But luckily I managed to stop the server and disabled the mod. When I started the server again I found myself dead and I... could... respawn. I grabbed my sword and charged toward the king and killed him. After re-enabling the mod. After I re-enabled the mod it was stuck. I couldn't disable it. It was like someone was controlling the server. That's when I remembered the king added the mod. He has access to the server panel. I reset my password and removed access from everyone who had access to the server panel. I couldn't believe I lost the whole city. I had to rebuild everything. I grabbed my blocks and everyone pitched in as we rebuilt the city better.

The rebuilding started immediately and everyone helped out. This time we rebuilt everything in Portal Stone which was as strong as obsidian but could change the texture to look like any block. Portal Stone could also change shape to look like stairs, slabs, fences, etc. It took us hours to rebuild everything and when we were done the city was even better than it started. Luckily none of the buildings in the other dimensions were harmed. But we rebuilt everything in Portal Stone anyway.

After rebuilding the city we announced to everyone that the king from the other dimension was killed and banned because hardcore is now on. This means if you die you can't come back. I also let them know about a mod I added called "Real-Game-Essentials" which added a lot of stuff from the real world and a lot of cool made-up things like Portal Stone. During the announcement I noticed some figures in black armor hiding in the crowd. I told the army to investigate. After I finished my speech I went and gave back the prototype sword back to James for him to work on. 5 army men charged through the door and told me that the Black-suited figures were attacking citizens and I needed to help get rid of them immediately. I grabbed my sword and went out to the center of the city. There were only 5 men so we got through them quickly but that's when I was attacked from behind and knocked onto the ground. It was Darksoul! He attacked me. "What the heck?" I said "It's the time!" he yelled just then about a hundred black-suited figures came out and charged for me and my small army. I yelled for backup but no one came. it was over... I thought as I was killed and wiped from the server. The last thing I managed to say was "Why David!? Why!?".

The Return

I just found this and I think it belonged to Logan... after he died the city was taken over. Dark-Soul is running anything and if he finds this I don't think I'll live. Well, since this could kill me, I'm going to stop writing here.

-

Well, I'm still writing here so I might as well let you know who I am. My name is James and I am an engineer in the old city. Now I have been fired and I don't have a job. So I guess writing in here will get me in trouble but I won't have anything he could do to me besides killing me. I wonder where Logan is. I'm tired, hungry, and hurt. I have no home and I'm miserable.

-

"Ahhhhhhhh," I said as I fell into a black hole. There is nothing. It's empty. Also, I finally got my book back. It's Logan just so you don't get confused. If you're wondering what happened here's the story. After I died I was banished into a black void forever with no escape. I was stuck with nothing to do. That's when I realized I still had server panel access. So I used it to summon my book to me. Now I'm just sitting here writing in the book. Nothing to do. Exhale. I guess I could use the server panel to bring me back to the overworld. The problem is the mod stops me so I have to hack the server and break the mod.

I used Cleseda the server panel hacker to hack into the server panel to delete the mod. Luckily it worked so I had no problem besides that if I restart the server Darksoul will know that I updated something so I'll just have to wait for the normal restarts. It took hours before the server's automatic restart happened so I had to just sit in my void with nothing to do. After the restart, I was able to get back to the overworld. I hadn't lost all my stuff so I was ready for a battle. I grabbed my sword and went to look for my friends.

I had no idea where my friends would be so I just looked everywhere and I tried to be secretive so no one would recognize me. I decided to change my skin so I don't look the same and change my username. I looked everywhere and couldn't find them so I had to locate them via the server panel. I ran a command that teleported me to Bodie when I appeared. Bodie screamed in fright and I slapped his mouth closed so I wouldn't get caught. He immediately asked how I was alive and I told him how I died and was sent to an empty void and how I used the server panel to escape and everything that I did. I asked him where Elias and James were and he said they left the kingdom and were in the wild. He told me that they have a little hut far away from the castle and they hide there. We headed to their hut and we stopped in front of a mountain. I asked how we were going to get through since there were hundreds of miles of blocks. That meant we had to climb over it. No need he said as he went over to a tree and replaced one of the logs with dirt. A giant hole opened in the mountain and we walked through.

At the base, there was a whole room full of chests and they had plenty of loot to take down Darksoul/David. I grabbed the prototype sword and had James finish the features so I could use it in battle. He said that it will take him at least an hour. I said that he could bring it to me when he was done so we could go attack right now. He said ok and we grabbed some loot and prepared for battle. I grabbed some armor and a backup weapon. We were ready, we got suited up and we set out for battle.

We sneaked up to the castle and went behind it and started breaking the wall to get in. We forgot that the new castle was surrounded by portal stone so we couldn't break through so easily. That's when I remembered the secret entrance James installed when we were rebuilding the castle. We pressed a button that opened up a hole in the wall. We entered the tunnel and went up the stairs into the council room. We sneaked under a table and hid until the coast was clear and we headed for the Darksoul's bedroom. He found him sleeping in what used to be my bed. I wanted to kill him right away but I was told by Bodie to not. We patched the entrance to the room with portal stone and we grabbed our swords and jumped into the air and killed Darksoul then I used the server panel to ban him so he couldn't hack back into the server. I also put up some more firewalls to protect the server panel. I broke the portal stone and returned to the council room. I had one of the army men set up a global announcement. "Good day everyone," I said "This is Logan the president. I was killed by Darksoul and I'm now back to run everything the way you voted for." "... I was killed by Darksoul and I'm now back to run everything the way you voted for." he grinned "it was time to put the master plan into part 2," said David

What Are The Odds

"It was time," David said as he walked through a blue portal.

"Hello," I said as I walked up to bodie and Elias, "Has he arrived yet?" I asked "Not yet" they replied. We were talking about my friend, Makua. He was going to arrive any minute at the castle. He was going to become the chief of war. "There he is," I said as he entered the room. "What's up?" Makua said as he walked into the hall in my kingdom, which was full of banners like it was his birthday. "Nothing much. Just defending a kingdom against David," I said. "Luckily, he is now dead, and we have no more problems," I said as I showed Makua the kingdom. "So you got a plan?" he asked, "well no. Mostly because David is dead, so there's no point." I said, "You go make one makua, I mean you are the chief of war." He made a plan with the army as I returned to my room.

David saw a weird creature as he was walking around the sky dimension. He tried talking to the creature to find out that the creature could talk. "Hello, what is your name?" asked david "Me GUSTA" the creature replied "gusta, can you help me with something?" "ye' i can" gusta said "Perfect" David said as he laughed like a villain.

Me and makua we're catching up because we hadn't seen each other in a long time. I showed him around the castle. In the meantime James was working on the proto sword and made it able to morph into a gauntlet for easier carrying and it could access more powers in this form. Makua came to James asking for a new weapon so James gave him a rocket launcher.

-

David grabbed the beast and pulled it through the portal going back to his base. Back at his base he started to train the monster how to fight. Apparently the monster could duplicate which he found out by looking at the beast's DNA. he duplicated the beast into an army and headed out to go take back his kingdom.

David came through the portal and told the monsters to stay in the portal. He went up to me and attacked. I fought against him and killed him. But when I delivered the final blow he vanished and reappeared at the portal. James shot David with his laser cannon arm only for the bullet to bounce back and hit himself. James was knocked down and I came right behind him and healed him. I sent him into the castle to call the army and get me the proto sword. I used my diamond sword to slice David's arm. At that moment James came over from the sky with a jetpack and threw Logan the proto sword. I grabbed the sword and used a lightning bolt on David knocking him back. That's when he called out his monsters. My army arrived at the perfect moment to counter attack the monsters. I continued to fight david. I attacked with the proto's sword tnt ability and blew David into the sky. He came down and sliced me in the leg making me collapse to the ground. I healed myself with a golden apple and tnt'd David again. He was on low health so I finished him off instantly. I went to help my army kill the beasts. We killed off the beasts and were free from David once again.

The Rift

It was a normal day like any other. We were done fighting David when a portal appeared. It was the king who was ready for another fight. He jumped at me and attacked his army, poured through the portal and started fighting us. We called out one of our new robot-monsters that were stronger than the proto sword. I sliced the king's arm off and punched him back into the portal. He came right back out and called in his army. He said he doesn't want to fight anymore. He said that he wants to live with us. I thought it sounded fishy but I allowed it. He had his army build a second city which he and his army could live in. We have now officially merged with the king's city. We have two times the army and citizens.

Me and the king were talking when I got an alert from Makua. He said that he saw David coming for us when he was out getting more food for the city. We got ready our armies and were waiting for David at the gate when the king sent his army on ours. We fought him off. I attacked him but that's when I noticed David come up and attack too. It was chaos. There were 3 different armies fighting. We fought them off. We used the robot-monsters to help us fight. After we defeated the king we got ready to fight David when he said "WAIT!!" I was very confused. He announced "I'm you" . What did he mean? David said "No Logan I'm you". I said "What do you mean?" he replied "I'm you but from another universe." David said "I'm your opposite" I replied "So does that mean I was fighting myself the whole time?" he replied "Yes you were. We both were." Ireplied "Well I guess then we should join together??" he replied "I guess." "How did you figure it out?" I asked "Well when James created the portal it made a rift." He said "The rift ended up cloning this universe and I was created. I was created and thought that you took over my castle so I tried to get it back.” So we joined forces and prepared for whatever was next.

Far into the farlands

We were walking down the hall as we received a message from David who was living in the city next door. He said he was planning on going on an adventure to the farlands. Which is a place far from the spawn that is a weird formation of blocks. I decided to go with him. I brought along my friend Gadge who recently joined the server. We grabbed some materials and headed out towards the farlands. “Beep bop boop” these noises were emitted by a machine of some sort that James was working on. We had decided to come and ask James for some of the new weapons because they had heard that an all powerful being named Bob lived there. So James gave Makua a trident that came back to him and gave Gadge a dual wield lightsabers. James also said he made a new weapon for himself. It was amazing a massive amount of nanotech that he could shape anything into anything. After that run in they decided to ride north on horses for a while. As we headed off we discovered a forest. The forest had many trees, I think it was a jungle biome as the trees were huge. As we traveled through the forest James looked at his map and said we were close to the farlands. We were at the point where the generation of the world was already off. You could tell because some chunks were higher than the others. James grabbed some blocks and built a robot staircase --that moved with every step they took-- to get to the entrance of the farlands. We climbed up the staircase and reached the top and entered the farlands. We saw a bunch of disordered blocks everywhere and we saw a figure in the distance. The figure that we saw vanished right away as we looked at it. We decided to go towards where the figure was standing once before. Once we got to the spot, James grabbed a machine and looked at it and said “The figure was powerful because there were signs of energy inside of the being.” Makua screamed suddenly as a small black dot began growing and sucking in his body. We tried saving him. I grabbed his left foot, James grabbed his right foot, and Gadge grabbed both of us and we started pulling. We managed to get him out of the black hole and went around it just to be safe. Randomly black points would pop up but we would dodge them. Until a black point had a white hand come out of it. It was the figure we saw earlier. It punched Gadge and then shot Makua with a laser from its mouth. I used my proto sword to block the laser and hit the figure. Then the monster jumped at James and he shot it with his robotic hand and then he built a robotic wall and we jumped behind it. Then the monster jumped and repeatedly hit me and I blocked the strikes. James then summoned his mech and it punched the being it then grew to the size of the mech and fought back. We kept attacking then the figure would counter attack until we finally killed it. We were afraid that there would be more of them so we decided to place down a warp point and finish this journey another day.

Back into the farlands

We headed home from our journey and James screamed that the city was on fire and there was a huge amount of mobs scattered around. We drew our weapons and started attacking the mobs. James shaped his nanotech into a shield and bashed mobs left and right while Makua threw his trident repeatedly. Gadge was slashing mobs with his dual wield sabers. Until we all stopped at the sight of Bob, the creature, but he was different he had a humanoid body. James used his nanotech to make a laser which takes the power of everyone's weapon and uses it as a laser. Bob just laughed and took the laser blast and shot it back. I used the proto sword to block the laser and it hit the ground making a huge crater. James said that Bob just redirected our most powerful weapon. So we got on our horses and went as fast as possible back to the farlands. The return to the farlands We zoomed towards the farlands, luring Bob back to his home. Gadge shot some lasers out of his lightsabers to hit Bob. Though it did no damage he flew back and continued to destroy our town. Since luring him away didn't work we decided to go to the secret base we setup near the farlands to make stronger equipment. So we went to the base and started on the weapons. James decided to make me some ultra armour to go with the proto sword. Makua got a shield that is 20 times stronger than steel. Gadge got a javelin that homed in on his enemy. Then James did something insane; he stabbed himself, killing him. But a moment after that we heard his voice coming from a piece of nanotech. Then James shaped himself into a metallic stronger version of himself. Into The Aether James built a portal with a glowstone frame and he poured some water into the middle of the frame. This made the whole portal light up a blue color and blue sparks flew out from the portal. We walked in to see an amazing world of floating islands and nice werewolves. In the distance we saw the mob that David fought against us with before we teamed up with him. I think they were called 'gustas'. They looked like striders but they were cyan and had stubby arms. We asked some to help us and some did so they duplicated and followed us to the portal. On our way back into the portal we saw Notch, the original creator of Minecraft. We asked him what he was doing in the Aether. He said that he was just exploring the game since he hasn't played in a while. I asked him if he could help us and he said sure so we headed to the portal and went back to the city. Defeating Bob, We returned to the city with Notch and the 'gustas'. James had made some invisibility potions so we could sneak into the castle to fight Bob while the gustas attacked the mobs. We followed through with our plan. The gustas made a distraction and we snuck in. When we got in, Bob was asleep and once we stepped inside he instantly jolted awake and said "who's there". And then he made the whole throne room float into the air. I switched the proto sword into gauntlet form and blasted Bob "OW h- h- how did you hurt me"? He went into monster form and started blasting us back. James transformed into a metal version of Bob and attacked him. They fought until Bob swept James's leg and stabbed him but James turned into some snakes and wrapped around him. Then everyone started attacking him until I yelled “stand back” and used my most powerful attack and obliterated Bob.

Friend Fight

When we got back to the city, Notch helped us rebuild. We got the place finished up again this time with a nearly indestructible block that James made. It was called TRITANIUM. Tritanium is a mix of melted obsidian, titanium, and portal stone. Which also can be formed into any texture of block. Stairs, fences, gold, diamond, etc. We also welcomed some of our friends like Cameron, Cassie, Jacob, Logan (Which is another Logan, not me. We call him LV), and Camden to the city.

I was walking down the street when we heard shouts of “No you stop” and “How about you!” We hurried over to see that all my friends were gathered and arguing there seemed to be 3 different sides to the argument, one side containing Makua, LV, and Camden. Another contains Cameron, Gadge, and Jacob. And the final one consists of Bodie, Elias, and Cassie. I wasn't sure why or what they were arguing about so I yelled for them to stop which quieted them down. Makua said that Gadge was trying to mess with one of James' projects and Cassie said that Gadge didn't even touch it, Gadge said he was testing it not messing with it, and James was out of sight. I'm not sure Where he was. We were about to have a 3-way friend war. I tried to stop them but they kept fighting. “Stop” I tried yelling but they didn't hear they grabbed their weapons and started to fight.

I ran around looking for James for his help but he wasn't there at all. And that's when David said that James was back at his secret lab. So I used the proto sword's teleport function to teleport to the farlands lab and found nothing. I got back to David and he said he meant James' lab on a mountainside near the castle. So I went to it and found a house sticking out of the front of the hill. So I ran to the door that was a couple of feet below the house. But when I got closer I saw Camden stuff weapons into his backpack. When I got up there he ran so I asked James why Camden had so much stuff and he said: “I gave Camden some guns because he said there was a war going between three sides and he said he needed the guns to stop the war.” I replied, “He's in the war, he's trying to get his team to win, not end it.” “Well, I kinda gave everyone else weapons too so yeah...” “James!!! I need your help. Is there a way to disable the weapons?” “nope” “Shoot well I guess we'll have to win this war.” “I'll get the proto armor,” James says as he returns to his lab, grabs the armor, and some weapons, and then throws it out his window to me then we teleport to the battle zone to see rockets flying and lasers shooting as well as citizens running and screaming.

The End